THE AMATEUR HOLD-UP

The situations in this comedy are well worked out, and the sport increases as the picture progresses.

We have had so many complaints concerning the annoyance caused by the large house now in use that we believe that all patrons of moving picture shows have at one time or other been prevented from seeing the pictures by the heat of those in front and have been considerably annoyed by this interference. We have considered various ways to eliminate this trouble and have finally decided to ask the ladies who cannot conveniently remove their hats to occupy the seats on the left side of the room.

Added to the fact that most corn cobs are built too wide and without chance for proper ventilation is another cause which is responsible for the spoiling of much corn in the ears during summer like the past, when the ears does not dry out properly before husking, and that is a alshaped job of husking which leaves much milk and husks on the corn as it is cribbed, serving to still further prevent proper circulation of the air.

Hood river apple growers received the highest prices for their 1909 crop than for any yet recorded. They were bought by Steinhart & Kelley of New York city and were handled through the local apple growers' union. Best Spitzenburgs brought $3.25 per bushel box, fancy Newtowns $2.25 to $2.40, fancy Jonathans $2, fancy Baldwins $1.90 and fancy Ortleys $2.25. The choice fruit was sold to Portland dealers at from $1.75 per box and less.

COUNTY TEACHERS HOLD SESSIONS

Principals and Assistants Meet with Teachers of Grammar Schools, State Inspector Hertzog Speaks. Subjects of Interest to Teachers.

The second meeting of principals and teachers in both high and grammar schools, of the county, was held on Saturday, in the new high school building on York street.

Superintendent Roth was much pleased with the interest manifested by the large attendance. The first meeting of the association was held during the Teachers' Institute last December, and the benefits to be derived from united efforts of teachers was evidenced by the fact that twenty members representing all sections of the county returned for further instructions in their respective duties.

During the morning sessions much of the time was given to the discussion of Latin as taught in the public schools.

Mr. Hertzog spoke of the subject as one of importance in aiding the pupil to form a broader and more comprehensive view of what a language really is. He dwelt some time on the importance of introducing any language to the scholar and urged that a clear, concise presentation of the elementary principles be impressed upon the mind from the very beginning of such studies. The afternoon session was devoted to the subject of "Relation between High School and Grammar School." This topic led into an explanation of the School Manual by the State Inspector and developed many questions regarding the advisability of excluding all minor branches and retaining the High School for higher studies only. This would require all scholars to complete the subordinate branches in the grammar schools before taking up the more advanced work in High Schools.

After a short talk on the question of examinations, Mr. Hertzog closed the meeting by expressing a hearty approval of the new high school building and its equipment.

B. Myers, of Arendtsville. The funeral services will be held at the home of Harry Bluebaugh in Butler township, near Arendtsville on Tuesday at 1 o'clock p. m. Interment in the Greenmont cemetery at Arendtsville. His pastor, Rev. D. T. Koser will conduct the funeral service.

He was a consistent member of the Lutheran church at Arendtsville and a man of quiet disposition and good moral character.

OLD TIME WINTER

Many people talk of the "Old Time Winters" as experienced in New England, but Pennsylvania, the "Keystone State," is to be ranked with the honoraries at least for one year. Cold weather began early with frequent flurries of snow, and a temperature hovering around the freezing point. The ice cutters were encouraged with the out look for an abundant supply of the winter product, that never proves its real valuation until the warm days of summer drive prices upward along the scale 'till they have reached a corresponding degree to the thermometer register. Then the thoughts go back to the delightful days of winter, with mountains of snow forming the background of an expansive landscape bedecked with a glistening carpet of white flakes.

The official reports from weather men of the county places the snowfall at sixteen inches, and better sleighing could not be had. With the solid, fair of ice and sleet as a foundation, and about six inches of well packed snow on top.

Many sleighing parties have been taking advantage of the winter past times and the week is scheduled for trips to many nearby towns.

BIG FIRE AT WAYNESBORO

Only about $10,000 Insurance Carried. Branch of Roulette Mills Located across Alley at One Time on Fire.

At an early hour Sunday morning Waynesboro was visited by a fire which completely destroyed one of its manufacturing plants. The Victor Tool Co. The loss is about $35,000 with $10,000 insurance.

It was about 1.15 when the fire was discovered and then the shop was a mass of flames it seems as if the blaze began in the forge room.

The night was calm and this in conjunction with the fire department kept the blaze, which was one of considerable size from communicating to other nearby buildings.

The power house of the Chambersburg, Greencastle and Waynesboro Electric road is situated along side the building which was destroyed and it was employees of this plant that discovered the fire. The building of the Waynesboro Manufacturing Co., now operated as a branch of the Roulette Mills, of Hagerstown is located across the alley from where the Victor Tool Co. building stood. The cornice of this building at one time took fire but was easily extinguished.

During the progress of the fire a large tank of gasoline in the building exploded. Window glass remaining in the burning building were shattered and sparks thrown a considerable distance.

The Victor Tool Co. is one of the younger industries of Waynesboro. It occupied a building about 60 by 60 and worked a good force of men. The firm made a specialty of making steel balls for ball bearings. In addition it did crank shafts for automobiles and did other work, making special parts for various machines as well as repair work.

The factory was owned and operated by Waynesboro capital. One of the proprietors, Henry G. Stoner, has suffered losses three times by fire in the same business. Mr. Stoner is a native of Waynesboro but for quite a while he resided in New York.

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

Some books which, are, handled dexterously by the dramatizer, become good plays. Such a book is "In the Bishop's Carriage." Channing Pollock, who made it into a play, was a loved a free hand. He took liberties with the characters which the original author, that bright California newspaper woman, Miriam Michelson, can hardly view without a twinge. Mr. Pollock knew his business as the theatre going people of this city can see when it is presented here at the Walter Theatre on Wednesday, January 26.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Miss Jennie Furney, of route 3, met with a very painful accident last Saturday while coasting near Pitzer's school house. A party of young folks were having an out door frolic and had engaged a double decker, while running at a high rate of speed the steering gear refused to work and the sled pitched into the ditch.

Miss Furney had her nose broken and was rendered unconscious for about an hour she is reported as getting along very nicely at present.

FUGITIVE CAUGHT IN HAGERSTOWN

Cornelius Flynn Charged With Larceny. Stole Rubber Mats from Vestibule of Pullman Car. Detained in Hagerstown.

During the early part of June 1909 information was laid before Justice of the Peace, J. L. Hill, for the larceny of several rubber mattresses, taken from the vestibule of a Pullman car then in service of the Reading railroad.

The information was laid by Detective C. H. Wilson on June 7th, and the theft was shadowed at the time so as not to give the thief a clue, thinking that the facts in the case and the guilty party would be revealed sooner if the entire matter was kept secret.

Being unable to dispose of the mats, which were valued at about $75.00 and fearing detection, Flynn courted the assistance of a "pal" who was then doing night work at the Power house. It is believed that the stolen goods were confiscated by throwing them into the boilers. Some time ago Flynn was arrested in Hagerstown and is now confined in the jail at that place.

Detective C. H. Wilson left for Hagerstown this morning with requisition papers to bring the fugitive back for trial.

APPLICATION FORM

Census Supervisor C. J. Elliott, whose office is at York has received from the Census Bureau a supply of blank applications for persons applying for positions as census enumerators. These will be forwarded to his list of applicants as soon as possible.

The applications, properly filled out, must be returned to the Supervisor not later than January 31, the Census Director having extended the time for filing from January 25, which was the date first set for closing the consideration of applicants. The "test" will occur February 5, as previously announced.

The instructions printed on the applicants form state that a definite answer is required to each of the questions, which are:

"Are you a citizen of the United States? If naturalized citizen when and where were you naturalized?"

"Of what State or Territory are you a legal resident thereof? Of what country and of what town or city and ward are you a resident? How long have you been a resident thereof?"

"What is your sex and color?"

"What was your age at last birthday?"

"Where were you born?"

"What is your education? (Give the principal facts.)"

"What is your present occupation?"

"What is your professional or business experience? (Give the principal facts, and, if at present an officeholder, name the office you hold.)"

"Have you ever been employed on census work, either national or state?"

If so, in what capacity and for how long a period? If an enumerator, for what territory or district? (Describe as accurately as possible.)"

"Are you physically capable of a full discharge of the duties of a census enumerator? Have you any defect of either sight, hearing, speech, or limb?"

If so, state nature of defect.

"Do you speak English? Do you understand and speak any language other than English? If so, what language? (Specify language spoken, as Bohemian, Chinese, Danish, French, German, Greek, Hungarian, Italian, Japanese, Lithuanian, Magyar, Norwegian, Polish, Portuguese, Russian, Slavic, Spanish, Yiddish, etc.)"

"Are you a member of a political committee of any party? (Answer 'Yes' or 'No,' but do not indicate what party.)"

"In view of the fact that you may be required to take a test before a postmaster, state what post office would be most convenient to you for this purpose. (This test is of a practical character, consisting chiefly or wholly of the filling out of a sample schedule of population from information furnished regarding typical families, and, in the case of enumerators whose work will be in rural districts, the filling out of a sample schedule of agriculture.)"

"Are the answers to each of the foregoing questions true to the best of your knowledge and belief? Are they in your own handwriting?"

Indorsements of each applicant must be secured from two representatives citizens of the community in which the applicant resides. They must be at least 21 years of age and acquainted with the applicant not less than one year. Indorsements will not be accepted from any person who is in any way related to an applicant.

The indorsement certifies that the applicant is a thoroughly trustworthy and honest person, of good habits, and, in my opinion, is fully capable of discharging the duties of a census enumerator, if appointed."

COUNTERFEIT IS IN CIRCULATION

Country is Probably Flooded with Bogus One Dollar Bills. Quite Hard to Detect. Discovered by C. A. Altemus.

Notice that one of the most dangerous counterfeiters of one dollar bills ever issued is in circulation has been sent out by John E. Wilkie, chief of the secret service.

This is the first note issued by the department regarding a new counterfeit in 1910.

The counterfeit is printed from re-touched photomechanical plates on a good quality of bond paper, ink lines being used to imitate the silk fiber. The series is of 1890. The check letter is "C." The face plate number is 4,801. The number on the back is 2,398. This bill bears the facsimile signature of W. T. Vernor, register of the treasury and Charles H. Treat, treasurer of the United States, with portraits of Lincoln and Grant. The number is R92786432. An inspection reveals defects in portraits of Lincoln and Grant, a distinct white patch being made to represent Grant's nose. The periods after Chas. H. Treat, over the "I" in United States under the treasurer's signature, after the "t" and after "Vernon" in the signature of the Register are omitted in the counterfeit. The small word "United" in the border of the note, immediately to the right of Grant's portrait, is spelled "Usited."

The counterfeit was discovered by C. A. Altemus, assistant cashier of the Chicago City Railway Company, last week. Mr. Wilkie estimates that thousands of the bills are in circulation.

A Sweet Breath.

General opinion to the contrary, it is not always a condition of the teeth that causes unpleasant breath, as stomach disturbances have the same effect.

If a thorough examination of the mouth fails to disclose any reason for an unpleasant breath no time should be lost in putting oneself under the care of a physician, for there must be an internal condition that cannot fail to grow more serious with time if it is not corrected. The form of treatment for this state differs as the case requires, but it is safe to say that only easily digested food should be eaten and the utmost effort made to keep the stomach in a healthy state.

Constant rinsing of the mouth with antiseptics and deodorants, while they do not cure, are decidedly beneficial.

A remedy for this purpose is made from six and three-quarter drams of salicylic acid, seven and one-half grains each of orange flower water and oil of peppermint, one pint of Florida water and one-half pint of alcohol.

The peppermint is mixed with one-half of the alcohol, the rest being put to the Florida water, and the liquid is then warmed by setting in a basin put into hot water.

The acid is dissolved in the warm bath, and the other ingredients are then added. The mouth may be well rinsed with this after eating and again at night. It is supposed to act favorably upon the teeth.

A Beauty Cure.

The beauty cure that is engaging the attention of fashionable society at the moment is the milk cure, and its only fault is that it is ridiculously cheap for a cure adopted by fashionable society. The milk is taken inwardly and outwardly.

A glass of hot milk slowly sipped at night composes the mind and prepares the body for restful slumber. Milk is rubbed into the face at night with a piece of soft linen and allowed to dry, and in the morning the face is washed in milk, but no soap must be used. Skin regularly washed in milk is declared to be proof against sunburn.

For the Complexion.

The woman who finds that her face is unusually dry and rough in winter should give a thought to the sort of care she is taking of it. If she persists in the use of alkaline soaps, toilet powders and aromatic vinegars, all of which are drying in their effect, she will soon be confronted by a lined or wrinkled skin. A better way is to rely upon a good cleansing cream and plenty of hot water, followed by cold water to stimulate the skin and close the pores.

The very poor are thrice handicapped in that scarcity of food is usually accompanied by shortage of fuel and thinness of clothing.

FOOD COST TO KILL PARTY

Colonel Harvey Says Tariff Rock Will Wreck Republicans.

St. Louis, Jan. 17.—That the problem of the cost of living will cause the overthrow of the Republican party in a very short time, unless something not now on the horizon appears to save it, is the belief of Colonel George Harvey, editor of Harper's Weekly, who is in the city.

Colonel Harvey blames the tariff policy of the Republicans for the excessive prices to which the necessities of life have been forced, together with the fact that the brunt of the hard ship has fallen upon the middle classes. The people who compose these classes, he thinks, will see to it that the party which is not only responsible for the increase, but has also betrayed the country through false promises, is driven from power.

"For this reason it seems to me the Democratic party could do no better than to confine itself to the issue of the high cost of living," said Colonel Harvey.

ALMOST ANY PERSON CAN HYPNOTIZE SELF

Just Make Up Your Mind and the Trick is Done.

Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 17.—Almost any person can hypnotize himself, says Dr. E. R. Tichenor, the well known Cornell psychologist. The strongest one is to power, the more susceptible one is to hypnotism, but he asserted that one could not be hypnotized against one's will.

The so-called hypnotist is of small importance in hypnotism, he said. The main thing is that the subject shall give close attention to the fact that he is going into the hypnotic state. The professional hypnotist has an advantage over laymen, however, through his advertising and talk, as people get faith in his ability. To put one's self into hypnosis make up your mind that you intend to become hypnotized and presto. It is done, Professor Tichenor said. First would come hypnosis, then sleep and then normal condition again. The reason people are not successful in hypnosis is because they let themselves go. Children and idiots are the only persons who can't be hypnotized. He asserted positively that a person could not be hypnotized against one's will unless caught off guard.

KEPT 30 CLOCKS NEAR BED

New York's Most Punctual Motorman Dies During Night.

New York, Jan. 17.—For the first time in thirty years Robert Willoughby failed to wake up when his thirty clocks, simultaneously setting off a series of gongs, gave their customary alarms. He had died some time during the night of Bright's disease.

Willoughby was fifty-seven years of age, and had been employed as a motorman by the Third Avenue Elevated railway. He was the most punctual employee in the service. No matter what the weather was Willoughby was never late.

The secret of his punctuality came to light when his room was inspected. Ranged round near his bed were thirty clocks of different sizes and makes. All struck the same hour at the same time.

Willoughby came from an old Maryland family.

CONFERENCE ON UNIFORM LAWS

Opened in Washington Today
With 600 Delegates Present.

TAFT MAKES OPENING ADDRESS

Many Notable Men Will Attend the Sessions—Governors of Forty-one States to Be Represented.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The conference on uniform legislation opened here today. About 600 delegates are in attendance. John Mitchell, Samuel Gompers, Andrew Carnegie, John Hays Hammond and Senator Root are among the prominent men who participate in the proceedings.

Delegates are in attendance from the National Grange, the American Federation of Labor, the Farmers' National Congress, the National Association of Life Insurance Presidents, the Association of State Boards of Arbitration and other prominent organizations. The conference was called primarily to devise means for the enactment of uniform legislation by the various states on important questions. On two of the days of the conference the governors of forty-one of the states of the Union are expected to be in Washington. They will attend also the third meeting of the executives of the states. Uniformity in divorce legislation, conservation of natural resources, regulation of interstate commerce, the control of corporations, the betterment of public health, the question of better protection to workmen in the mines, pure food laws, and scores of other important public matters will come up for discussion.

For National Divorce Bill.

Men well known in labor circles, bankers, publicists, capitalists, educators, scientists, in fact those who rank high in almost every walk of life are to be represented. The proposed national divorce bill which was adopted by the National Association of Uniform State Law Commissioners, and which has been postponed by the legislatures of New Jersey and Maryland, will attract much attention. It is believed. The causes for divorce named in this bill are those which now are set forth in the laws of thirty-eight of the states.

The conference of the governors is scheduled to begin tomorrow morning. Governor Willson, of Kentucky, chairman of the executive committee of the conference, has been in Washington for several days arranging the details for the sessions, which will extend over three days. President Taft will make the opening address at this conference also.

Governor Willson threw cold water on the "house of governors" plan that has been advocated in some quarters. "Too much like the house of lords," said the Kentucky executive emphatically. "That very title would seem to presuppose that the 'inside house of governors' had some legislative function. It couldn't have and the name is a bad one. There seems to be no doubt, however, that these annual informal conferences of the governors will do a great deal of good. We are working for the same things and along the same lines—uniform state laws in fact I might call it a standardization of state laws—as is the National Civic Federation."

FRIGHT RESULTS IN DEATH

Youth, Seeing Train, Jumps From Sled on Track.

Williamsport, Pa., Jan. 17.—Archibald Aderhold, of near Perryville, was cut to pieces by a Northern Central railway train at a crossing near Cogan Valley. Fright led to his death, causing him to jump from a sled directly in front of an onrushing passenger train. Fred Aderhold and Harvey Wright remained on the sled and escaped injury. The sled was somewhat damaged, but almost cleared the track before being struck. The crossing watchman, James Hayes, was struck by the sled and severely injured.

MADE INSANE BY THEFT

Man's Mind Affected by the Loss of About $400.

Philadelphia, Jan. 17.—Plunged into insanity by constant worry over the loss of about $400, which was stolen from him about four weeks ago, Pasquale De Alisio, of Beth Ayres, Pa., owner of a number of houses along the York road, it is said, dashed about the streets of Beth Ayres with a club in one hand and an open knife in the other. He was caught by Policemen Smith, of the state constabulary.

It is said that, following the loss of his money, De Alisio became worried and was unable to sleep. Although the thief was captured and the money returned to him, De Alisio plainly showed that his mind was affected.

SNEEZE ALMOST KILLS HIM

Motorman is Rendered Unconscious by Violent "A-Choo!"

Altoona, Pa., Jan. 17.—A sneeze that could be heard a long distance almost cost Jacob Leidy, forty-two years old, a street car motorman, his life. With out more than an instant's warning he emitted a violent "a-choo!" at a time when his arms were outstretched and his chest expanded, and the force of the concussion dislocated his vertebrae near his neck, causing pressure on the spinal cord.

When he recovered consciousness it was found that he was partially paralyzed, but this gradually disappeared.

Convict Heir to a Million.

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 17.—J. Edward Boeh, who is serving a seven-year sentence in the state prison, was amazed when he was informed by his attorney that he had fallen heir to a million dollars through the death of his uncle, J. C. Lonsberry, of St. Paul. Boeh has four years more to serve in prison. He was convicted in 1907 for participating in a big jewelry swindle.

The contracts between the bituminous miners and the operators of the following states expire on March 31: Central and western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas. THE CULPRIT?

By SALLY MENDUM.

(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

All Petersburg was ringing with the murder of Tim Meagher, an old man who lived alone in his cottage on the outskirts of the town. Miller, the head of a detective firm in the city, twenty miles distant, was called for by the town authorities. He went up, looked the matter over, came to an agreement with the mayor and promised to put some one on the case immediately. He was taking his supper in a private room in a restaurant when the door opened and a man of rather seamy appearance entered.

"Mr. Miller, I believe," said the newcomer.

"I am. What can I do for you?"

"I was in the detective business once, and I'm trying to get into it again. I'd like to take hold of this Meagher case."

"I'm going to send a man up to attend to it."

The seamy individual pulled a letter from his pocket and handed it to the detective to read. It was a certificate from a detective firm that Joel Zimmerman had worked for it and done good service.

Miller's bargain with the mayor had been largely contingent upon tracking and capturing the murderer, a not very profitable way to do business. It occurred to him that if he could get this person caught he would let him work for awhile—at least long enough to make some development. Besides, the man told him that he suspected a certain person and would look for a clew in that direction. He felt so confident in the matter that he offered to work without pay unless he made a valuable discovery, but stipulated that he should have the field to himself.

No other detective should be put on the case. On these terms Mr. Miller engaged him and went back to the city to attend to other matters that promised more certain results.

Joe Avery, a nephew of the murdered man, lived in Petersburg, a much respected young man, with a very nice wife and two very pretty children. One day while walking on the street he picked up a ten dollar bill. He was in hard luck at the time and very much delighted at his find. The bill was partly spent for meat at a butcher shop. The same afternoon Avery was arrested for the murder of his uncle on information furnished by Zimmerman. The detective produced a list of bills, giving their numbers, that he said he had found in an unused chimney in the murdered man's house. The list was supposed to refer to $7,000 that the old man kept there. The theory was that the money had been taken by the murderer, who had unwittingly left the list.

Everybody in the town was surprised at Avery's arrest, and no one at first believed him guilty. It was not supposed that his uncle had any money, and if he had the murderer was the only one who could have known of it.

There was a strong case of circumstantial evidence against Avery, but it was weakened by Zimmerman himself, who under cross examination contradicted himself as to how, where and when he had found the list. Experts disagreed whether it was or was not in the handwriting of Meagher. By throwing doubt upon this evidence the prisoner's attorney saved his client from a verdict of guilty. The jury disagreed, but in order to avoid the expense of another trial brought in a verdict of not guilty.

Avery had no doubt that he had been made the victim of a plot and as soon as he gained his liberty set about a bit of detective work to discover the author. The first fact he noticed was that with his acquittal the case was dropped. The authorities believed that the murderer had been discovered, but that his acquittal was a case of "not proved" rather than "not guilty."

The detective who worked up the case against him had dropped the matter and was now working for the Miller detective agency that had employed him. Indeed, every one seemed satisfied to let the matter rest except the man who had narrowly escaped the gallows and was in consequence living under the ban of being a murderer. These were the reasons that induced Avery to take up the case on his own account.

Avery made up his mind that his uncle had been a boarder. Indeed, he remembered certain incidents to indicate that such was the case. Some one had discovered that the old man had money in his possession and had robbed and murdered him to get possession of it. If his uncle had saved money possibly he might have had something to do with some bank. He sent out a circular letter to all the banks in the state asking if Timothy Meagher had any deposits there. Several savings banks replied that bank books to the aggregate amount of $200,000 had been issued to one Timothy J. Meagher. Avery did not suppose that his uncle had a middle name, but searched the family records and found that he had. It was John.

Avery was astounded. He was also delighted—delighted for two reasons. First, he was his uncle's legal heir and would be rich; second, his uncle had undoubtedly had some money in his house and had been robbed as well as murdered. Could he find this robber he would be exonerated and rich.

He first took steps to secure his uncle's fortune, then offered $25,000 reward for the murderer.

The reward brought a letter from the murderer's accomplice stating that he would give up his principal if not prosecuted himself. His terms were accepted, and he sent in the name. It was Joel Zimmerman.

Eight months later Zimmerman was executed.

It is probably safe to assume that if the true status of all dairy herds in the country could be known tuberculosis would be found one of the greatest sources of no profit cows. The dairyman who applies the tuberculin test to his herd and eliminates affected animals not only does the public a service by disposing of hotbeds of disease, but in the long run puts dollars in his own pocket. Should he add to the tuberculin the Babcock test, to tell him what his cows are doing along the line of butter fat production, he will be able to spot every undesirable individual in the herd.

CURIOUS EPIGRAMS.

Brevity on a Tombstone—Douglas Jerrold's Suggestion.

Among the 1,300 epitaphs collected by Ernest R. Saffling in "Epitaphia" are many quaint and curious specimens. Grimaudi off the stage was said to be a sufferer from melancholia. It will be remembered that, going to a physician on one occasion, he described his case, when the worthy doctor briskly told him to "shake off the feeling. Go and see Grimaudi, and if he does not cure you your case is indeed hopeless." "Alas," said the poor sufferer, "I am Grimaudi." His epitaph reads "Here Am I."

A prize of $100 is said to have been offered by one Thorpe, who was desirous of being perpetuated but briefly on his tombstone. One competitor sent in "Here Lies Thorpe's Corpse." This was certainly brief enough, but finally it was cut to "Thorpe's Corpse."

Many of our readers know the Douglas Jerrold and Charles Knight story. They were dining together on one occasion when the conversation turned upon epitaphs. Knight half in jest suggested that Jerrold should write his (Knight's) epitaph. The subject dropped at the time; but, walking home together in the evening, they came to a spot where each had to take a separate road. Jerrold, extending his hand to his friend, remarked, "I've thought of a capital epitaph for you."

"What is it?" said his friend, much interested. "Oh, very brief and very simple, 'Good Night!'"

There are many curious epitaphs on graves. Here's one from Ulverston, Lancashire:

"Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

At Chelmsford, Essex, on a stone to the memory of "Mary Blewitt of the Swan" it is stated that she "was the wife of nine husbands successively, but the ninth outlived her." It is added, "The Text to Her Funeral Sermon Was, 'Last of All the Woman Died Also.'"—Westminster Gazette.

The history of Berkshire hogs goes back 125 years, the progenitors of the popular breed being described as large in size and of a sandy or brownish color spotted with black. BRITISH LORDS ADMIT DEFEAT

But Expect to Reduce the Liberal Majority.

WILL BE AT LEAST 90

Protectionists Claim the American
Steel Trust, Represented by Andrew
Carnegie, Gave $5,000,000 to Defeat
Protection.

London, Jan. 17.—Sunday gave a welcome respite from the strenuous work at the election stations, and an opportunity for calm reflection over the prospects of both parties striving to gain control of the government. The greatest animation prevailed at the clubs and other rendezvous of politicians, and Saturday's results were excitedly discussed from every possible viewpoint.

Although both sides preserve a sanguine air of confidence, it was evident that the conservatives have abandoned hope that their party will form the next government. The utmost they dare to expect is that the Liberal majority will be so reduced in the next parliament as to place the Liberals at the mercy of the Nationalists.

An estimate was made after a careful calculation by a well informed Unionist, based on Saturday's pollings and gives the Liberals and Laborites a clear majority of 90 or 100 over all parties, which would provide the Liberal government with a good working majority. Many of the Unionists, however, are less despondent. They do not believe that the Liberals will finish the election with so good a record as this.

Small Show For Unionists.

At present, to sum up, nothing could be predicted with absolute certainty, but only a very great increase in the Unionist gains over Saturday's results, when they gained only half the number of seats they had counted on, will give them victory. If the Unionists continue to gain in the same ratio the Liberals will still retain a majority somewhere in the neighborhood of ninety.

Chancellor Lloyd-George said: "We are winning. England is declaring emphatically against government by the peers and peer. The north is overwhelmingly with us."

John Burns, president of the local government board, said:

"All things considered in the fight between those who have too much and those who have too little, Saturday's results are exceedingly good. London has done much better than I expected. In my judgment it has done supremely well. To win the seats that have been lost would have required almost superhuman efforts."

That Andrew Carnegie has contributed secretly over £1,000,000 ($5,000,000) to the cause of the Liberal party for the purpose of fighting a protective tariff for Great Britain in the interest of the American steel trust is the story freely circulated by the British Protectionist party to support its contention that the free traders are really the tools of England's bitterest commercial rivals.

Lord Claude Hamilton, standing for the Kensington division as a Tory, ventured to publicly assert that his free trade opponent, Captain Macilvalne, a retired naval officer, was having his campaign financed by "an American multi-millionaire, who requited British hospitality by dumping his highly protected steel products upon our shores."

In response, Captain Macilvalne stigmatized Lord Hamilton's statement as being absolutely untrue, whereupon his rival replied that the charge might have been taken as banter. In spite of this the story has been most industriously disseminated, and it has obtained many believers.

BARFOOT HIKER WINS

Farmer Walks Four Miles Over Frozen Snow For $10 Wager.

Corydon, Ind., Jan. 17.—While the mercury was hovering around zero and the ground was carpeted with a four-inch snow, Herman Hill, a young farmer, to win a $10 wager, walked barefoot from his home to the town of Depauw, a distance of four miles.

Three friends of Hill dared him to make the chilly overland trip, and the adventurer readily accepted the offer. In less than an hour Hill reached his destination and appeared not to suffer any ill effects from his barefoot trip.

ICE FLOES CAUSE HAVOC

Hunting Lodges, Oyster Shacks and Boats Smashed in Atlantic Inlet. Atlantic City, Jan. 17.—A dozen meadow hunting lodges and oyster shacks, a score of boats of different sizes and several wharf landings used by oystermen were smashed from their foundations and moorings and either crushed or swept away by tremendous ice floes which broke loose and crashed their way through bay channels and the inlet. Men in some of the cabins narrowly escaped with their lives, and it is feared that some of those still missing may have perished.

News of the disaster was brought here by Captain Peter Jeffries, of this city, after an all-night fight in a small boat through the floes after he had escaped from a "watch house" in the bay used for keeping guard over the oyster beds. Captain Jeffries took to his tiny skiff when he feared that his house would be swept from its foundations, and he narrowly escaped disaster at several points before he arrived home.

SUICIDE BY FIRE

Woman Fires Her Clothing and Is Fatally Burned.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 17.—Mrs. Timothy Lynch, aged twenty-seven years, made a horrible attempt to commit suicide. She saturated her clothing with kerosene and then set fire to them. Instantly she was enveloped in flames and ran screaming through the streets and rolled in the snow. A young man coming home from a ball put out the flames, but she was so horribly burned that she cannot survive. When she was lying in the snow her husband, a miner, stood by and refused to make an effort to aid her, although his eight-year-old daughter begged him to save her mother. Domestic trouble was the cause for the spectacular and horrible suicide.

BLEW OFF HALF HIS BODY WITH DYNAMITE

Held Explosive Against His Breast and Touched It Off.

New London, Conn., Jan. 17.—Residents in Evergreen avenue, just north of the Pequot colony, thought an earthquake had overtaken them when William Bennett deliberately placed a stick of dynamite close to his breast and, touching off a fuse, blew off half of his body.

Bennett's wife was in an adjoining room, and it was evidently his intention to kill his wife as well as himself. Bennett had worked with his father driving artesian wells and was familiar with the use of dynamite. He has been confined in sanitariums at different periods for ten years past, and on Friday last fired three shots at his wife, the bullets hitting a corset steel and being deflected.

The sitting room in which Bennett tragically ended his life was wrecked, all the windows being blown to atoms and the furniture and the brick-work demolished.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 17.—Resolutions pledging the signers to abstain from eating meat for at least thirty days were set in circulation among workmen in large shops here and will reach 50,000 men. The movement has the backing of a number of members of the Superintendents' and Foremen's club and the hope is to bring down existing prices.

At a meeting of the club ten superintendents and foremen promised to circulate the petition in their shops, in each of which over 1000 workmen are employed. A petition circulated in one shop received 460 signatures.

FIGHT OVER ESCAPE PLOT

Jail Break Frustrated by Quarrel Among the Prisoners.

Georgetown, Del., Jan. 17.—In a wrangle over a plot to escape from the county jail, John Adams was beaten by other prisoners. The plot was frustrated in the fight.

Adams and several other prisoners, in talking over which one should take the most dangerous part of the program, began a fight. The sheriff was attracted, and with his deputies entered the jail with drawn revolvers and returned the prisoners to new cells.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 17.—While sleigh riding, three juniors in the university here attempted to turn a corner on the campus too short and were thrown into a pile of snow. OPPOSITION TO TAFT POLICIES

Congress Holds Up Bills Advocated by President.

REGULARS AGAINST THEM

Amendments to Interstate Commerce
Law Opposed by Cannon's Followers
In the House — Conservation Bill
Awaits Volunteer to Introduce It.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Regulars in congress are opposing the policies of President Taft, and soon it may become necessary for the president to address himself to the task of bringing regulars into line. Representative Mann, of Illinois, chairman of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, who is recognized as Speaker Cannon's first lieutenant on the floor of the house, as well as others identified with the organization, do not approve of the president's recommendations for change in the interstate commerce law, nor do they favor the administration plan of federal incorporation. Mr. Mann has introduced substitute bills in each case. He objects to the interstate commerce court feature of the president's proposal for changes in the rate law and objects to his federal incorporation bill on the ground that it is an interference with the rights of the states. Representative Mann does not stand alone in his attitude toward these two administration measures. His objections to them are shared by other members of the committee of which he is chairman, the very committee that must pass on the bills before they reach the house.

The administration bills to carry out Mr. Taft's views on the subject of the conservation of natural resources are still before the house committee on public lands awaiting the announcement of some volunteer that he is willing to undertake their defense in the house. The offer of Chairman Mondell, of Wyoming, to introduce the bills "by request" having been declined by President Taft and Secretary Ballinger, attention will be given to the measures by individual members of the committee and they may be parceled out among several of the western representatives.

Many people believe that the administration forces made a mistake in declining the proffer of Mr. Mondell. His opposition to the Ballinger bills is said to be in harmony with the lukewarm support given by him in the past to the Roosevelt or Taft programs for the conservation of natural resources. It is pointed out that few bills which withdrew for government reserve any part of the public domain that has been subject to entry have had Mr. Mondell's support. The measures in question were drafted by Secretary Ballinger and the endorsement "introduced by request" would have brought them prominently to the attention of the country as administration measures.

In view of the fact that Mr. Ballinger's conservation tendencies have been questioned it might prove advantageous to him to have his personal label put upon them.

SNOWFALL WORTH FORTUNE

Virginia Farmers Believe It Will Save Crops From Drought.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 17.—The heaviest snowfall for ten years, which now covers the valley of Virginia to a depth of nearly ten inches, and farmers estimate that it is worth many thousands of dollars to them, as it will save the wheat and other crops, which were suffering badly from the long drought. There has been little or no water in the valley since early last summer, and if the snow melts gradually all the streams and rivers will be replenished.

Stolen Silverware Found.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan. 17.—The stolen silver from Barnes Compton's home, taken on the night of the murder of Sarah Brymer, the family govt. was found in the upper part of the tenant house occupied by Frank Schermerhorn. There were 161 pieces, mostly solid silver. It was all scorched and stained by smoke and stained by soot, showing that the thief had attempted to burn it, and failing, had thrust it through a stovepipe hole in Schermerhorn's room on the second floor. The accused man was questioned for several hours, but he stuck to his denials stubbornly. He refused to make any damaging admissions.

Circus Rider Seriously Injured.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 17.—Mrs. Maud Rollins, a wild west rider in the indoor circus that performed last week at the Broadway arena, is in the emergency hospital here as the result of an accident at the final performance of her engagement. With three other cowgirls, she was racing around the arena on horseback. Near the finish line a gray rope, dangling too low, caught her under the chin and jerked her backwards on her back. She suffered from concussion of the brain and many bruises.

His Grandma Wife

How a Man to Save a Fortune Was Obligated to Wed His Grandmother.

By BRADFORD C. ALMY

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I was in Switzerland and about to climb the Jungfrau when a bundle of letters and newspapers were handed me. While waiting for my guides I tore open the wrapper of the papers and, scanning one of the journals, noticed a marked item stating that my grandfather, Sherman Wellesley, aged eighty-five, had married and died the same day.

In a twinkling I was deposed from a position of heir expectant to a great fortune to—I did not know what. My grandfather had bitterly opposed my propensity to travel and especially to climb mountains. I was his only descendant, and he had long endeavored to induce me to settle down to the care of the millions which he had willed me. He lived in constant terror lest I should make a slip on one of my climbs, go several thousand feet down over a precipice and the fortune that had been accumulating during his lifetime would go a-begging. In other words, it must be left to charity.

His intention in marrying was plain to me. He could not have an heir (other than myself), but he could have a wife. He had doubtless lost all patience with me and at the last moment married some woman who would supply my place as an heir.

I hesitated what to do, but, looking up at the glittering top of the white mountain, forgot for the time all about the fortune I had lost, and, my guides being ready, I started on what proved my last ascent. On returning to my starting point, Interlaken, I left for home. As soon as I landed I wrote my new grandmother asking for information as to her husband's disposition of the property. By return mail I received this reply:

Your grandfather, being taken suddenly ill, concluded to destroy the will leaving you his sole heir, not having confidence that you would settle down and attend to the property. Having but an hour or two to live, there was no time to make a detailed will. His brain, always quick to work, solved the problem in this wise: Having great confidence in me, he married me on his deathbed and signed a will comprised in a few words leaving me all his property. He, however, exacted a promise from me that if you desired to marry me I would take you for a husband.

Well! Marry my grandmother! Well, all depended upon what kind of a woman she was. A hope sprang up in my breast that she might be of a suitable age for me and passably good looking. I wrote her that I would run up for a conference and politely assured her that if she was not favorably impressed with me I would release her from the verbal condition by declining to marry her. This, I flattered myself, was a very easy way of putting it, my real object being to decline to take a wife with a fortune if I didn't like her.

I was doomed to a terrible disappointment. I found my grandmother a veritable grandmother. She was sixty-five years old, fat, bald and not a tooth in her head that was her own. I cursed myself for a fool to have declined to comply with my grandfather's wishes during his life, for now that the blow had fallen I realized my folly. It was evident that to save the fortune I must marry an old woman, and even then she would own the property till her death, and I should have to ask her for every penny I spent.

Having taken sufficient time to make up my mind what course to pursue, I sounded her as to whether I could marry her, take an allowance and spend my time anywhere but with her. She said she would think it over, and she had hope. But the next day I was informed that such a course would not be carrying out her late husband's wishes. He had desired that I should take care of the property.

The medium through whom I received this answer was Agnes Dorchester, my grandmother's secretary, a young woman not quite my age. Indeed, I was obliged to transact everything through this girl, and it was not long before I saw plainly that Mrs. Wellesley was completely under her thumb. This added to my chagrin. Another had stepped in between me and the fortune I had been brought up to expect would be mine, and I was not even at liberty to deal directly with that person.

Having discovered where the power lay, there was nothing for me to do but endeavor to gain such points as I wished to make through its possessor. I invited Miss Dorchester to a conference, in which I played my best card in an attempt to induce her to persuade her mistress to fulfill her promise, allow me a stated income and permit me to live abroad.

"Mrs. Wellesley," she said in reply to this proposition, "would not have been intrusted with this matter were it not that she was to be implicitly trusted with carrying it out. Your grandfather's object was to make a man of one who was wasting his talents in globe trotting."

terms. She declined all my proposals, adhering to her late husband's intentions. She would fulfill her promise and would not consent to any subterfuge to get around it. A month passed, and I was about to give it all up and go away when Mrs. Wellesley herself came to me with a proposition.

"I sympathize with you heartily," she said, "in being obliged to give up a fortune or take with it an old woman like myself. I will tell you what I will do. I am as attached to Miss Dorchester as if she were my daughter. She is of suitable age for you and a woman of rare good sense. I can safely trust her to carry out your grandfather's intentions toward you. If she will have you and you will have her I will make a will leaving my property to you both jointly, giving her meanwhile control of the income."

"But I don't know that I like Miss Dorchester," I exclaimed, taken aback at this offer. Then after a pause, "Will she consent to the plan?"

"That is for you to find out." I had no hope that Miss Dorchester would marry me simply to gain a fortune, and in any event I should have to live with her and carry out my grandfather's wishes. But anything rather than beggary. I went to the young lady, told her of Mrs. Wellesley's proposition and asked her to be my wife.

What did she do but toss her nose in the air and decline to have anything to do with such a proposition. I left her furious. She would rather give up a fortune than be my wife. I spent the next twenty-four hours in inventing imaginary ways of torturing her. The upshot!

We all know that a woman scorned becomes a fury. There is no such adage about a man, but there should be. "A man scorned is soon conquered."

I resolved that I would make Miss Dorchester love me, then toss her aside as a wax doll. In a few weeks I had softened her so far as to receive a proposition from her.

"I cannot bear," she said, "to stand between you and a fortune. I feel that it will be impossible for Mrs. Wellesley to carry out your grandfather's intentions toward you. I will agree to her proposition to marry you provided you will promise to go away and not trouble me."

I had secured terms that in the beginning I would have considered very acceptable. But what did I consider them now? An insult.

"Are you aware," I said, the color rising to my cheek and a spark glittering in my eye, "that you are by no means flattering?"

"But I supposed what you wish is to go abroad and break your neck climbing mountains."

"Oh!" I exclaimed ironically, "in that case you would not be troubled with me further."

"And death would release you from living with a wife you had married for convenience."

In this retort I fancied I could detect something womanly—something of pain. I was surprised. I went to her and laid my hand on her arm. I was not repulsed.

"I think," I said, "that you could carry out my grandfather's wishes at any rate, try. I will do all I can to help you."

"To retain your fortune," she said, peering.

"And become a loving husband."

The evening before the wedding, when I was a hundred miles from my intended bride, I was thrown into a wild state by the receipt of the following telegram:

You must marry your grandmother, after all, or lose your fortune. AGNES.

What new complication could have arisen? Why could not those lawyers be certain of anything? I had become violently in love with Miss Dorchester and would not in any event give her up. I replied:

Grandmother be hanged! I will marry you tomorrow.

I could not get a train till early the next day, but after a sleepless night at 5 a. m. was steaming toward my bride that was to be. On my arrival I hesitated whether to go at once to see her and discover the meaning of her telegram, but there was little time, and my mind was made up as to the marriage, so I dressed for the wedding before setting out. I dashed up to the house in a carriage, alighted and hurried up the steps. Agnes was standing in a front window in bridal array, her face radiant with happiness. Rushing into the room where she was, I caught her in my arms.

"What's the matter?" I asked, breathless.

Milady's Mirror

A woman who never worries declares that there is nothing more detrimental to beauty in woman than worry. The worrying woman does nobody any good. She simply invites the hand of time, which writes plenty of wrinkles on her brow, around her eyes and mouth, paints her face yellow and gives a lackluster eye that no artifice can brighten.

It is quite unnecessary to worry, and it is a total waste of energy, which could be better employed.

You know a worrying woman the moment you see her. Her character is written in her face in wrinkles which you would think nothing short of a miracle would obliterate.

Downright ugliness is a heavy price to have to pay for the possession of a bad habit, but there it is. And not only does worry directly influence the complexion for evil; its more remote effects are no less potent in robbing the face of the peach bloom tints which are the admiration of the poet, the painter and the general public.

Worry affects the entire nervous system, and through it the liver and organs of digestion and the heart. The things a woman thinks have more than anything else the power to make or mar her beauty. So let her beware of worrying overmuch lest she lose the greatest of all the gifts.

To Make the Hair Healthy.

If you want to keep your hair in a healthy condition be careful always to use a clean hairbrush. Many bad cases of dandruff are due to carelessness in this matter. Directly the brush begins to look grimy wash it in soda and water. Have the water nearly boiling and "pat" it with the bristles. Be careful that the back of the brush does not get wet, as it ruins the polish. When quite clean rinse in warm water, then let it stand for ten minutes in clean cold water and leave it in the air to dry. Don't put the brush to dry in the sun or too near the fire or the bristles will turn yellow. If the back has been damped rub it with sweet oil, then polish.

To keep the hair bright and glossy few better methods exist than that of ventilation. The treatment should be practiced for five minutes each day, night and morning. The tresses should be separated one by one and shaken gently and slowly, so that the air may penetrate between the strands. If a maid's help is obtainable a still better result can be secured, the attendant fanning the air gently on to the hair with the right hand while supporting one lock at a time with the other.

A hot soapstone wrapped in a flannel cloth and put in the foot of the bed in a cold room is worth at least 25 cents per application and is about the only thing that makes life endurable in a below zero country.

TOPIC OF PRESENT IMPORTANCE

Personal health is and should be one of the greatest considerations of life, and as so many local people are praising the new remedy, Root Juice, it is not surprising that so many of the afflicted people of this county are so eager to talk about it and get all of the information they can in relation to the many remarkable cures it has made and is making. It invariably proves a great and agreeable surprise to weak, nervous, dyspeptic, constipated people, for after using it for a short while the soothing, healing and tonic properties of the wonderful remedy removes irritated and sore conditions from the linings of the stomach, bowels and bladder, heals and strengthens the liver and kidneys to healthy action, resulting in a good appetite, food well digested, bowels regular, good, rich blood, free from rheumatic poison, and it soon nourishes and strengthens the whole nervous system. The people at the drug store are proud of the wonderful merits of Root Juice, and gladly tell all interested of much of the great good it is doing here. People's drug store.

"I'm your grandmother." Her eyes were dancing a burlesque.

Then I saw it all. My grandfather had married her instead of the old woman. She had been playing a game with me. My grandfather in the presence of death had hit upon the expedient of marrying the girl who had been supplying my place by devoting herself to him. This would make her inheritance stronger in law, though he left a will in her favor telling her that it was his wish that she should marry me and make a man of me.

But she had no mind to make a business transaction of the matter. She had therefore put an old woman forward to personate her as the widow while she stood in the background. The old woman had nothing else to do with the matter except to receive a handsome salary. I had been completely duped, but had become so impressed with the ability and good sense of my real grandmother that the moment I was plucked I was hopelessly in love.

A Fish That Gives Pain.

The well known brown pigment called sepiol is obtained from a ten armed octopus found principally in the Mediterranean and more especially at the head of the Adriatic sea, where it is caught by the natives for food.

The sepiol is contained in a bag and is really the black fluid of which we have all read as being discharged by the creature to cover its escape. Some naturalists say that the fluid is brownish, which becomes more credible when we know that this is the source of sepiol. The pigment is really a powder which dissolves in water. Its strength may be estimated by the fact that it will color 1,000 times its own bulk. When the octopus has been killed the sack or bag is removed and dried to prevent putrefaction. The sepiol is treated with ammonia or caustic soda, washed and dried. It is one of the most durable of pigments, except when fully exposed to the fierce rays of the sun, and an even surface can be obtained with it more easily than with most paints. Sepiol has been obtained from a fossil cuttlefish thousands of years old and found to be quite good for paint.

The Releaser.

If he hadn't been a dreadful bore and the hour wasn't so late it is quite possible the lovely girl would have refrained from the exercise of a strategic scheme, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Hark!" she whispered as he passed in the midst of a long winded description of his camping outfit. "What is it?" he whispered in return.

She smiled reassuringly. "It's only papa. He must be offing the releaser."

"And what is the releaser?" "It's one of papa's ingenious schemes. Every night, at exactly 11 o'clock, he pulls up a brass chain that releases our brindle bull pup from his annex adjoining the kitchen; that's all."

And she laughed merrily. The caller glanced at the clock on the mantel. It indicated 10:57.

"I find I must go," he said in a slightly hurried manner. "And good night."

Method. Method goes far to prevent trouble in business, for it makes the task easy, hinders confusion, saves abundance of time and instructs those that have business depending what to do and what to hope.
